T. & P. Quarterly.

I would I were the singer who could give that wondrous strain Of music sweet and poetry like our John Howard Payne; I wished my voice could utter some words of holy tone, And sing the song my heart hath felt about that one word home, For home is where the heart is.

Its pictures of sweet memory shine forth like lights that glow Across the varied pathways that mortal feet may know; It seems the fairest beacon when one is far away, The sacred place, the dear place, of joy in its array, For home is where the heart is.

Of holiness and sweetness, of beauty and of love, A little germ on earth below, a type of heaven above; There is no sweeter picture to those who sadly roam Than contentment by the fireside in the blessed place called home, For home is where the heart is.

A mother's face is mirrored within that dwelling there; A father sweet and tender with the old familiar air; The brothers and the sisters in childhood's merry tone, Are all parts in the picture of the blessed place called home, For home is where the heart is.

And we who dream about it and have its joys no more Are sad at heart and desolate as we tread a foreign shore; And when the clouds seem heavy and when the heart seems lone, 'Tis sweet to dream and wonder about that place called home, For home is where the heart is.

To thing across the shadows of the silence we may go, To find the homes awaiting that we really do not know; With the sweet and loving faces of the friends we've had of yore And that home is surely for us on the brighter, better shore, For home is where the heart is.

No heart is left alone there, there are none that stand outside; There are none who are disheartened because of earth's poor pride; But the love shines deep and holy and the sacred place is known To the high and to the lowly in the land that we call home, For home is where the heart is.

A Sad Accident.

Little Otto Whittaker, son of Mrs. Emma Godwin of our city, while playing with some dynamite caps had the misfortune to get his hand badly mangled Thursday. He was promptly taken to Drs. Barton and Younger and the wound taken care of and at this writing is doing very nicely. The sorrowing mother and friends have the sympathy of our entire town.—Bullinger Banner-Leader.

Bullinger Notes.

P. E. Truly went to Dallas and other places first of the week on business. Mr. Truly expects to buy a second hand newspaper outfit near Dallas and move it to Bullinger and begin the publication of a third paper.

E. W. Hatchel went up to San Angelo first of the week and purchased a stock of goods, and will open up a store in the Cabe neighborhood, half way between Bullinger and Winters. This is a thickly settled neighborhood and there is no reason why Mr. Hatchel should not get a good trade.

Locations in Texas Wanted.

The Frisco System Land and Immigration Association is already turning its share of the southwestern tide of immigration to Texas.

Three hundred and fifty agents of this Association from the East and North have just completed a tour of Texas and viewed its resources and interviewed its land owners and local Association agents, for the sole purpose of better presenting Texas opportunities to the homeseeker and investor in the older states.

This Association is the most efficient of its kind in existence, and has agents everywhere in the United States. If you wish to sell your farm, town or other property, or if you desire capital for factories, mercantile establishments, or any of the industries, please address R. S. Lemon, Secretary Immigration Bureau, Dept. A. Frisco Building, Saint Louis, Mo. S. A. HUGHES, 9-11 Gen'l Immigration Agt.

Good Roads.

San Angelo is to have good roads in the very near future. The commissioners court have purchased six fine mules to be used in this work, they have also purchased a new wagon and an up-to-now road grader. The grader will arrive in a few days and Bill Moon, the road overseer, will begin operations. Everyone that knows Bill Moon knows what this means, that we are to have a system of roads second to none in the state. The Press congratulates the commissioners in their purchase of up-to-date machinery and also their selection in a manager for the work.
